DEATH OF MR. JOHN C. ROPES.

The Distinguished Military Critic

Passes Away in Boston. Captain W. Gordon McCabe received on yesterday a telegram announcing the death, on Friday night, in Boston, of Mr. John Codman Ropes, who suffered a ng, the junior partner of which, Mr. Loving, has recently been elevated to the Supreme Bench of Massachusetts. Mr. Gray, the other partner, is one of the Outside of Boston, Mr. Ropes was beter known as a military critic and histoh-making battle.

Ropes had been engaged upon "The Story of the Civil War," to be completed in four volumes, two of which have aircady appeared, and the third of which, it is understood, is almost ready for the printer. For this task Mr. Ropes was in every way eminently fitted. His minute knowledge of the military details of bar-ties and strategic movements was not such as to excite the wonder of
